

Halloween Horrors

Hillari Spicer
Staff Writer

Classics that go "bump" in the night

The Exorcist (1973)

Inspired by a documented exorcism in 1949, this movie deals with the demonic possession of a young girl, whose mother tries to win back her daughter with the help of two Priests through an exorcism.

Halloween (1978)

A Halloween night goes wrong when a former child murderer escapes from a mental hospital and terrorizes a baby sitter and her friends.

The Texas Chain Saw Massacre (1974)

Five friends headed to visit their grandfather's old house are in for a rude awakening! Hunted down by a cannibalistic family, one by one they are horrifyingly murdered!

The Shining (1980)

Bone chilling movie taking place in an isolated hotel where Jack Nicholson moves in with his family as caretaker for the hotel. They meet the ghost of a previous custodian who murdered his wife and two daughters. This movie will haunt you!

Carrie (1976)

As an outsider, Carrie is teased and picked on by her classmates who get in trouble one day by Miss Desjardin. The classmates want to seek revenge on Carrie at the senior Prom but do not know that Carrie is "gifted" and they do not want to make her mad!

A Nightmare On Elm Street (1984)

A group of teenagers start having dreams about a scarred man with razor fingers and are soon murdered brutally in their sleep. Nancy, the last remaining, realizes that she needs to stay awake in order to survive!

The Omen (1976)

Through bizarre accidents and signs, Damien's mother Katherine realizes that her son is evil and may be the son of the devil!

The Silence of the Lambs (1990)

Two hour hair raiser about FBI agent Clarice Starling, who tries to solve a murder mystery by interviewing Dr. Hannibal the cannibal.